

Red Wings Sign Bertuzzi

Written by Dobber

Tuesday, 18 August 2009 14:43 - Last Updated Wednesday, 19 August 2009 09:01

The Red Wings have signed Todd Bertuzzi to a one-year deal pending a physical, according to TSN.

Fantasy Impact: If the Jason Williams' signing didn't remove Justin Abdelkader from the roster

Red Wings Sign Bertuzzi

Written by Dobber

Tuesday, 18 August 2009 14:43 - Last Updated Wednesday, 19 August 2009 09:01

before, this one will now. Looks like he'll have to wait another year. Ditto for Jeremy Williams, who probably could have been a part-timer otherwise.

There is a chance that Bertuzzi will eat some of the power-play time that Ville Leino was going to get, but I think the youngster will prove himself enough early on to take the PP time right back in the second half. Still, you may want to roll his outlook back a few points. Danny Cleary also stands to lose some PP time.

Bertuzzi probably won't play 70 games in a season again in his career. That puts his upside in the mid to high 50s now, which he could hit in Detroit. It's an ideal situation for him.