
Just when you thought it couldn't get any better - it just did. For my fifth installment of the Interactive Playoff Draft List
I did the unthinkable.

I took the old kick-ass template and clicked "delete".

I can do better.

Better than kick-ass, you wonder? Yes.

Instead, what I did was create a playoff tree, with dropboxes for each team in each round that you can choose - all the way through to the Final. Each round that a team wins, the games played prediction for the players increase - multiply that with my own analysis of what I think that player's points-per-game will be and "voila", you have the makings of a draft list. I adjusted for injuries, as well as past playoff performance and any Simon Gagne-like late-season surges.

As you can see, the selection menu is clean and simple - dropboxes for each team Too complicated? Then just click that button on the bottom "See Dobber's" and you will then see my personal draft list. Still too complicated? Then please note the "instructions" button that will go over everything in detail.

Not complicated enough? Then let me draw your attention to the bottom right corner where you can manually add more games to a team if needed and you have the option to include goaltenders. There are also sort options - by name, by points, or by team: all at the push of a button.
