The Ultimate Playoff Pool 2008 is long gone, but the prizes have been awarded (except one, details below). Check out some of the pictures of DobberHockey readers and the big grins on their faces...

The good people of HockeyKnight.com were kind enough to donate a genuine autographed Nicklas Backstrom (WAS) jersey to our first place winner. DobberHockey's Eric Maltais presented Jean Daveluy the prize...

The second prize was kindly donated by CoolHockey.com and it was won by Paul Siopiolosz, who got to pick a RBK EDGE authentic jersey - whichever one he wanted. CoolHockey.com is the best source for quality hockey jerseys - they supply some of the suppliers! So just go to the source the next time you want a jersey - visit
CoolHockey.com
. Anyway,
smart man that Paul is, he chose a Boston Bruins home jersey with the No.4 on the back
. That's right - three letters were all that was needed above the legendary number. You can't go wrong with Bobby Orr.

The third prize will apparently be awarded to a clown. KIDDING! But Colin McPhee, you could become one of Dobber's clowns if you walk away from this cool third prize. It's sitting there, waiting for your custom design request. SEVER Goaltending is donating a blocker valued at $225 to Mr. McPhee for finishing third... now if only McPhee would get the message!

Here is a sample of the blocker McPhee could have...

SEVER
PRO BLOCKER
STOCK '08 GRAPHIC
WHITE / TEAL / BLACK / ORANGE

[illegible] another 30 days (so